Brown Sugar Bubble Tea Ice Cream This brown sugar bubble tea ice cream was hot favorite when it was released in Taiwan, and now it is available in Singapore! We had the opportunity to try this ice cream and it tastes like real brown sugar tea and there is even a little chewing pearls inside! Photos that are GreatDeals.SG order here. 2. Tong garden bubble tea popcorn Imagine this: a stabbing of crispy popcorn that tastes like bubble tea? That's exactly what Tong Garden came up with! It looks like a great breakfast for us to sulk at while we're slowing down on the Netflix series! Photos from the Tong Garden order here. 3. Bubble Milk Tea Mochi This breakfast combines the chewy texture of mochi and the sweetness of bubble milk tea into one! Each mochi also contains a real tapioca pearl, and reviews have stated that its taste comes very close to the actual cup of bubble milk tea!☺ Photos courtesy here. 4. Tom Farm Black Sugar Milk Milk Almonds popular brand from Korea, Tom's Farm is famous for their honey-flavored almonds with oily flavors. They recently released the new coffee flavor of black sugar bubbles, which packs the sweetness and aroma of bubble tea into small crunchy almonds! We tried this product and it is surprising how good it tastes! Photos that have been Calia.co order here. 5. Taiwan Bubble Tea Pineapple Cake Taiwan is famous for its pineapple cake and bubble tea, so why not combine both of these favorites into one? This bubble tea pineapple cake contains the traditional pineapple jam and tapioca pearl pearl bits, all wrapped in its tart-coated skin that breaks down in your mouth! Photos of Shop. Order here. 6. Bubble milk tea nougat cookies more Taiwanese breakfast that many people love is nougat cookies! Now, we love it even more because they have introduced a bubble milk tea option. Soft bubble aroma of tea nougat, sandwiches between crunchy cookies, looks like the best of both worlds! A photo of Hamochi.com row here. 7. Brown sugar bubble tea ball This product was released recently and it received a lot of fanfare. Chewing brown sugar pearl gums are wrapped in soft milk tea flavored candy, reproduce a nice cup of brown sugar pearl milk tea! Is that really worth it? Tell us! A photo of @mykmtnd on the Instagram row here. 8. Tao Kay Noi Bubble Milk Tea Seaweed Tao Noah is known for coming with eccentric algae flavors. But this bubble milk tea flavor seaweed is definitely a game change. The crunchy pieces of seaweed are covered with a generous amount of milk tea powder, combining the original taste of seaweed, as well as sweet milk tea. Photo Of a business insider order here. 9. Count Bubble Milk Tea Cake This Taiwanese brand decided to combine our love for Tea in your latest bubble milk tea cake column. It also has a different taste of earl grey tea tea! Some reviewers were surprised to try small bits of tapioca that were hidden in this little dough! Photo of 8 Days Order here. 10. Boba Kaiser chocolate is a chocolate with a tea-flavored bubble that can excite both chocolate lovers and bubbles. Based on comments we have read, it tastes quite similar to real milk tea and even has a pearl sole hidden in the center! A few reviews also mentioned that this breakfast is best chilled! Photos from Sheila Shopska order here. Can we be left with bubble tea? Apparently not! As if strange new flavors like red velvet and watermelon are not enough, we BBT-crazy people are sticks to buy something new that is flavored after the drink. To quote Miley Cyrus, we can't stop and we won't stop.
